

Our Mission

Remembertheone.org is a non-profit Internet based site created in the spirit to help any ONE during their personal journey that may be related to health, spiritual, or life issues. We give these "ones" the resources to connect, update, and share their journey. No "one" is ever alone.

Making certain that no ONE is ever alone.

Every ONE has a story

Start a Journey

Create a free journey page for you or a loved one with our easy-to-use format on the Remember The One website. On the journey page you can post updates, important events and add photos to document you or your loved one's story. You or your loved one's story can be related to a health issue, life issue or spiritual issue. Once you have the journey page you will have a safe and secure environment where you can direct family, friends and supporters.

Follow a Journey

You can become a supporter of those on the Remember The One website that have a story to share by following their journeys. By creating a free login, follow the stories that are close to your heart, keeping up with important events and milestones, and lending support and encouragement along the way. You may even find inspiration for your own life.

In Their Own Words:

"Remember The One allows me to chronicle and share my life with the family and friends I choose. It is nice to go back and see what I have been thinking or doing as I live with Parkinson's."

- Becki

"For others who are looking to engage and share on the Remember The One website I would say "go for it". By seeing all the people who have followed our journey we have been so encouraged by the support and love that we've seen from people we know and people we don't know."

- Shelley

"I have found Remember The One to be an invaluable resource for my patients for both understanding there are others in similar situations, as well as helping them be able to communicate with their supporters to keep everyone interested up-to-date."

- Dr. Jeff Williams
